Lambert To Direct Summer School

Marks Tenth Anniversary

Veterans Outnumber Regular Students

This Centennial year of 1947 marks ten years of service for Dean Asael Lambert as Dean of summer school at BYU. Dean Lambert, who is a nationally recognized expert on public schools and school system administration in state and government welfare work, according to national education reports. Dean Lambert has received such acclaim for his books on education and is often quoted as an authority on school techniques and problems throughout his country.

As well as being a scholar, Dean Lambert is a great lover of the out-of-doors, being a special interest in animals.

Dean Lambert is an alumnus of BYU, having received his B.S. degree in 1928. He received his Ph.D. from Stanford in 1935. He was the superintendent of public instruction for Fremont County in Idaho.

In 1920 to 1923 he was the principal of the B.Y. high school also at one time was an assistant professor of secondary teaching, professor of educational administration and finally, after many years of faithful service and diligence, he became dean of summer school in 1937. Never failing to give out a friendly greeting to summer school students during his ten years as administrator, Dean Lambert again sends his hearty greeting to all summer school students and asks their help in making this, the centennial and the largest of all summer schools, the best.

COLLEGE BRIEFS

by Duke, Visitor

Pomiment among many Alumni visitors on the Campus last week was Dr. Kenneth L. Duke, assistant professor of anatomy at Duke University School of Medicine.

Formerly of Heber City, Dr. Duke received his bachelor's degree from BYU in 1926. He has been teaching at the North Carolina Institution for the past seven years.

Accompanied by his wife, Dr. Duke will spend two months in the state of Utah before returning his teaching post in August.

Alfred Wallenstein and the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra played their last Provo concert this season on June 1. Conductor Wallenstein and his orchestra members thrilled the Provo fans who were impressed at the youth of many of the orchestra members and the magnificent display of talent exhibited by them. Mindful of a fact that this is the Centennial year, Mr. Wallenstein displayed some of the greatest musical offerings and choices of material to do justice to the occasion. He completed the eight symphonies of Beethoven, including such famous selections as "Prelude and Liebestod" and "The Kiss" and "The Carnival." Overture; Dance of the Seven Veils from Salome; by Strauss; and The Symphony of Tchaikovsky.

Dr. Thomas E. Martin, dean of a college of science, is scheduled to return today to resume his duties after a week's absence. Dr. Martin has been attending convention of the Western Society of Soil Science in San Diego, California.

Swenson To Make Eastern Trip

Professor Emeritus John C. Swenson will visit members of the Church and alumni of the BYU in Chicago, New York, and Washington, D. C. during the next two weeks. Professor Swenson will make contacts with several state presidents, individual alumni, and alumni clubs of the BYU. He is on an official visit, the BYU Alumni Association has announced, and is working to further the Alumni Association's program to establish closer contact between alumni and the university.

He will visit state presidents to further understanding between the university and the home wards and states from which many students come.

Professor Swenson is especially well qualified to visit BYU alumni, since he has been a member of the faculty longer than any other professor on the campus. He is still active and progressive and is known and respected by BYU students and alumni as a pillar of education and an incarnation of the spirit of the BYU.

Christensen Heads Y News Staff

The editorial edition of the Y News, student publication, will be edited by Elyne Christensen, according to Professor J. Ruben Clark II, faculty adviser. Miss Christensen worked as feature editor on the Y News during 1945.

Panel Discussions Prove Interesting

"The Migration to Utah" was the theme of the second in the series of round-table discussions on early Utah history which are being presented as a special feature of the summer school. During the discussion of the causes and actual events of the Mormon migration was presented Sunday night in the Joseph Smith banquet hall.

Participating were Dr. Meredith Wilson, moderator and director of the series of round tables; Dr. Howard R. Driggs, recently professor at New York University and an officer of the American Trails Association; Dr. Thomas Donney, an expert on Utah history and recently president of the central states mission, and Dr. Wilford Poulsen of the BYU, whose hobby is early Church history.

Many causes and events combined to make the exodus from Nauvoo necessary, members of the panel explained. Church members often antagonized their neighbors by making claims that the Church was going to take over all the surrounding country. The Nauvoo area was on the line between the north and the south and felt much of the friction which led up to the civil war. Professor Poulsen said that the destruction of the Nauvoo Expositor by Church members was a crucial event in bringing about the riots which forced evacuation of Nauvoo.

The thoroughness and efficiency of Brigham Young and the Church as a whole was commented on by members of the round table. If the pioneers had not planned as carefully and cooperated as well as they did, the whole migration might have ended in disaster. Dr. Wilson reiterated the purpose of the round tables, to get the people in this area excited about a history that is really unique.

Enrolling 1200 students for the centennial summer school, the BYU has broken all previous records, last year summer registration record being 1000, according to Registrar John E. Hayes. Veterans taking advantage of their G.I. Bill of Rights comprise the majority of summer school students with 82 of the 127 veterans being enrolled for graduate work and the remainder taking regular curriculum studies. There are 573 regular students enrolled, 129 of which are graduate students, being signed under the graduate school, states Registrar Hayes.

Musical Artists To Appear in Summer Concerts

This centennial year brings to the people of the West the greatest musical offering in the one hundred-year history of Utah. Brigham Young university, which has already presented the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, will sponsor during the remainder of June concerts by Carlos Alexander, baritone, and Miss Francis Watkins, soprano. Mr. Alexander will conduct the famous St. Matthew Passion on July 13.

Carl Furstenberg, pianist, will be heard July 2. The world famous Roth quartet will also be heard during July. The quartet, which has won the admiration of many students and townspeople as well, will begin its series of five concerts commencing July 7 and continuing through July 14. Feri Roth will play first violin; Sander Salgo, viola; Josef Smilovits, second violin; and Janos Scholtz, cello.

The Roth quartet is scheduled to play the composition, "American Serenade," by Professor LeRoy Robertson during the last concert July 14. The quartet will be admitted to concerts by showing activity cards.

Los Angeles Chorus Makes Appearance

The Adams Centennial chorus of Los Angeles gave a concert Tuesday evening at Brigham Young university as a part of their tour through Utah. The 70 voice chorus from Adams Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints made its contribution to the Utah Centennial celebration, representing the LDS colony in the California city.

Opening at 7 a. m. the concert was open to the public as well as the students.

Health Service Still Provided

Students of the summer school may have their minor ills and injuries treated as a free service of the university, according to Virginia Fielding, who is the nurse in charge of the health center on the upper campus. Her treatments will be given free, but drugs taken from the health center must be brought by the student at their original cost. No doctor's service will be provided during the summer school nor will the center give financial authorization to see a doctor.

Under authorization of the Student Health Committee, Mrs. Fielding has just completed a tour of student health centers in Southern California. She visited several of the health centers at the University of Redlands, Cal Tech and Los Angeles City College and noted the functions of the student health systems on these campuses.

Mrs. Fielding said that from her observation, the NYU is giving their students more health service than several of these universities.

The usually crowded housing situation has been partially alleviated this year due to the use of Wye Mount Village and the excellent guidance of Prof. B. F. Cummings, Housing Director.

There are still sleeping rooms available for men and women and if married applicants will be patient, apartments may also be found, claims Prof. Cummings.

The 1947 summer school student will be able to take advantage of many fine classes which are being offered. Such educators as Sterling McMurphy, Ph.D., from the University of Southern California; O. W. Watson, Ph.D., from the University of Chicago and others will make this summer school outstanding.

Also adding to the summer school is Carlton Stewart, Director of the American Institute of Family Relations, Los Angeles; Laddie Laddie, Educational leader from the Department of Radio Education, Detroit; Owen L. Barnett, M. S., superintendent of Utah schools; and Alvin L. Grande, G. Noble, E.D.D., director extension division of Utah State Agricultural College; Minnie Barlow, Salt Lake City public schools; Lynn Fausett, professional artist and Alvin L. Grande from England who is also a professional artist.

Telescope Study Classes Begin

Astronomy students will have a chance during the summer session to view through the telescope such celestial spectacles as the moon, Jupiter, with some of the stars, and Saturn with her rings.

The first telescope study was Monday, June 16, and the second will be this evening, according to Carl T. Eyring, professor of physics and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. The study will be held from the roof of the Maeser Building. Dr. Eyring will direct the observations and explain the planets studied and the use of the telescope.

Dr. Eyring has stated that students of the summer school who are interested in taking the observations, even though they are not studying astronomy, are scheduled to be built on here at the Maeser Building at 9:00, this evening according to present plans and if the sky is clear.

Students and faculty await with anticipation erection of the observatory which is planned as part of the new Science Building scheduled to be built on the campus next year. This observatory will be the first of its kind on the Maeser Building.

Sunday School:

Sunday School classes will be held on the Maeser Building in Smith Building. Students are welcome.

Alexander and Watkins To Present Concert Here

By Jack Christensen

"Last summer I expressed great hope that the Opera and Oratorio Workshop, which was started then, could be built up and developed to become one of the main features of both the annual summer festival and the winter term," stated Carlos Alexander, visiting instructor of voice, choral and opera chorus, and also the featured artist of last evening's concert. "Since then, due to the great encouragement on the part of the faculty, as well as the initiative of Don Earl, I feel that the matter has come quite a good way. "I am looking forward very eagerly to the preparatory work of the two major productions, "The St. Matthew Passion" and "The Abduction From the Seraglio." "At this point I'd like to make another personal appeal to all students and citizens of Provo to participate in the performance of the "St. Matthew Passion," as we are aiming to perform the work on a large scale." Mrs. Alexander (who is popularly known to her thousands of fans as Frances Watkins) not only thinks this is one of the most beautiful spots in the country but also has a very warm feeling for this vicinity, since it was here that she and Mr. Alexander spent their honeymoon.

Started Career in College

Mrs. Alexander began her career as a popular singer at Stevens college, Columbus, Mo. She and her sister met a semi-professional singer at a buffet dinner given by one of the faculty members and they immediately formed a trio. Smiling in reminiscence she related, in her friendly southern accented voice, the incident which led to the formation of the trio combination. It was the sister's custom to dress alike and that evening was to be no exception. When the honored guest arrived, one glance at each other was enough to cause all three of them to burst into laughter, for she also wore an identical dress. They still think the incident was fate.

Sang With Paul Whiteman

Soon after the trio was formed

Valkyrie Elects Social Chairman

The Valkyrie social unit held a club meeting last Thursday at the home of Dixie Black, president. One of the matters of business taken up was the release of Grace Hutchings as social chairman and the election of LaVern Clinger as temporary social chairman during the summer. Recently the members honored Mariel Holmes with a shower. Future week-end trips are being planned for Mirror Lake, Aspen Grove, and the Timpanogas Loop, including the hike up Mount Timpanogas.

They arranged for an audition with Paul Whiteman. It was a success and they were engaged to appear on his radio program, the Woodbury show, in New York. When Whiteman started to tour the country they decided to stay in New York. Numerous successes followed, including parts in the Billy Rose show at the Fort Worth Centennial in 1937, performed at the New York Stadium, plus having a program on NBC.

Frances Watkins began studying seriously in 1939. Since then she has been associated with the Pennsylvania Opera Company and the New Opera Company, and has also sung at Radio City Music Hall. She played the role of Kathy in the original Broadway production of the Student Prince. In 1942 she sang in the Broadway production of the Barber of Seville, which was produced in a new, completely modernized version and was termed a " flop." For her it was there that she met Carlos Alexander.

Appeared in Premiere

Mr. Alexander is at present stage director and leading baritone for the Chicago Opera Theatre and the Pittsburgh Opera Company. On June 1st, Mr. Alexander appeared in the American premiere of Benjamin Britan's opera, "The Rape of Lucretia," which he also directed.

Camping Class Plan Excursion

The members of the camping class are planning a trip to Rock Canyon beginning Friday morning and lasting till Saturday evening. The campers will make their camp at the top of Rock canyon and spend the evening there. Early Saturday morning the group will hike to Provo Peak. Others of the group will hike to Sheepherder's Springs. Future week-end trips are being planned for Mirror Lake, Aspen Grove, and the Timpanogas Loop, including the hike up Mount Timpanogas.

This was quite an event in the musical world.

Leaving for Memphis

Mrs. Watkins is leaving for Memphis in July, where she will appear at the Memphis Open Air Theatre. She is to return to Provo in time for the performance of the "Abduction From the Seraglio" on August 14.

Miss Watkins and Mr. Alexander are presenting a concert June 26, and have asked that all requests for this concert reach them by June 20.

In closing, Mr. Alexander stated, "We came out this year despite many offers from other summer festival activities, because we felt that this festival was being conducted in a highly artistic and thoroughly enjoyable spirit, and we felt that under these circumstances we could do better work here than in many other places."

The naturalness and charm of these two greatly talented people show beyond a doubt that they are truly great artists. They are very gracious and totally unaffected by the fame which they have achieved.

Y Graduate Awarded M. S.

H. Gail Voorhees, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Voorhees of 402 South Main, Manti Utah, was a candidate for the degree of Master of Science in Retailing at New York University's 115th Commencement exercises held Wednesday morning, June 11, it was announced by Dr. Charles W. Edwards, dean of the New York University School of Retailing.

Mr. Voorhees attended Manti High School and later Brigham Young University where he was granted the degree of Bachelor of Science in 1943. For the first semester at the University, Mr. Voorhees received store training at Brooks Brothers and during the second semester at B. Altman and Company in New York City. Chancellor Harry Woodburn Chase awarded the degrees and certificates at colorful ceremonies Wednesday morning, June 11, on the University's Hall of Fame campus on University Heights.

The Cat's Meow

By L. Young

Biggest sports news of the moment is the National College Track and field meet, which is to be held tomorrow and Saturday at the U. of U. stadium. As one professor on the campus has stated, "It's something that happens in this locality just once in a hundred years, which for us means just once in a lifetime."

Of particular interest to "Y"

lap race, and about one minute, fifty-eight seconds for the half. These times, it will be noted, are not too impressive when plotted against the times of Penn State's Gerald Kerker, who ran the four laps in slightly over four minutes this spring, or against the time of Herb McKenley, champion mile runner via Illinois U., who stepped the 800 under one minute and fifty-three seconds, also this season. However, Robison's marks in the mile have been made against poor competition. In the half-mile race, his marks have been established after he has completed a race over the four-lap distance. Further, it is the belief of many who have seen him perform, that, as yet, he has not been extended even close to his potentialities. It is possible that he has run this season he has finished, apparently, scarcely out of breath.

Although Robby has not competed in the two-mile race this season, his showing in winning the Intermountain AAU cross-country race last October, and his capable of going the eight laps, and judging from that race, the two-mile may prove to be his best distance. He is certain to be tested to the limit in the mile this week-end, and is expected to make his best showing in that race. Many of the two-milers whom he will race against will participate in only one race, and will have the advantage of being more refreshed at the start of the race than he will be. However, there will be nearly a two-hour rest between the races and Robison may have enough stamina to be at his best in both events.

Big Brady will be after points in the discus and javelin, with his chances considered to be better in the javelin throwing event. He has consistently won the spear near the one hundred, ninety feet mark this season, and, demonstrating his worth as a "money player," his best throws have been made while the chips were down. His longest throw this year was made in the state championship meet while Utah and BYU were tied for the lead at 45 points each. His event wins were virtually clinched the meet for the Sons of Brigham.

The experts are predicting that a heap of two hundred feet or over will be necessary to finish in the points at the U. of U. stadium this week-end. If that long a throw proves to be necessary, our money is on Brady who he is the man who can produce one.

There.

Clarence Robison

students will be the opportunity to see our own Clarence (Robby) Robison, and big Brady Walker, in competition against the finest athletes the nation's colleges can produce.

Track Coach Floyd Millet has announced that Robison will compete in the mile- and two-mile runs, and that Walker will participate in the javelin and discus events.

Robison has racked up some very respectable performances in the mile and 800-yard runs this spring, winning the conference championship mile, and chasing Colorado's fast Dave Bolen across in the conference half-mile run. In the longer race he has experienced no serious opposition, with the exception of his first trial of the season, when Tommy Quinn, who ranks among the nation's top two- or three-milers, defeated him with a four-minute, twenty-two second performance. And though we don't like to alibi, several of the track experts believe that Robby might have won that race had he been aware of his potential prowess and tagged along behind Quinn instead of behind the shirley-louted Lee MacIntosh, who subsequently dropped out of the race.

Robison's best time of the season has been about four minutes, twenty-six seconds, for the four-

Several Records Endangered

The nation's sport spotlight will be focused on the University of Utah stadium this week-end, when 310 of the most outstanding college athletes in the country meet here and glory in the National Collegiate Athletic Association track and field championships.

The meet is a part of the Utah Centennial celebration, and has taken on added color as it is regarded as being a preview to the selection of the United States Olympic team.

The meet will begin Friday night at 7:30 with trials in ten of the fourteen events, on the docket. The entry list has reached such proportions that in some races four or five preliminary heats will be necessary to determine the finalists. Only in the mile, two-mile, high jump, and pole vault, will there be no preliminary qualifications. As to the quality of the meet, the University of U. coach and director of the meet, The finals on Saturday will also begin at 7:30.

Intermountain fans are looking forward to seeing better performances in almost every event than have been put on display in this section, and the possibility looms large that several world records will be endangered.

McKenley, Patton Entered

Heading the list are such well-known stars as Pat-McKenley, from the University of Southern California, who is currently heralded as the nation's fastest human, Herb McKenley, from Illinois U., who has bettered the world record in the 440-yard dash, Fortune Gordien, of Minnesota U., who has broken the discus over 165 feet, and Charley Parker, the widely hailed "Cousin Sam" of a year or so ago, who has stepped the 100-yard dash in near record time.

Track Coach Floyd Millet, of the U. of U., has announced that Robby Walker, and Clarence Robison, will race the Young and into the mile and two-mile events, and Robison will participate in the discus and javelin, and Robison will place in their respective events.

Some outstanding individuals, the outcome of which may determine to a large extent the regular track season, will have excellent chances of placing in their respective events.

Some outstanding individuals, the outcome of which may determine to a large extent the regular track season, will have excellent chances of placing in their respective events. Dillard, colored hurdler from Baldwin-Wallace U., defending NCAA champ in the high jumps, and Craig Dixon, of UCLA, are certain to hook up in a torrid battle for their specialty. Dixon, challenger, has a flat 14 seconds, in a race last week, and Dillard has registered a 14.2 second time in the same event.

McKenley and Patton are looked on to fight it out in the 220-yard dash, with Patton given the edge in the century sprint.

"Moon" Mondschien to Compete

Perhaps the most colorful entrant in the meet will be Irving "Moon" Mondschien, of New York U. Mondschien will participate in six events, including the pole-vault, high jump, shotput, broad jump, discus, and javelin. He has established some very creditable marks in these events, and is considered a dangerous prospect to represent the U. S. in the decathlon in the Olympic games. Mondschien is an individual and individual performances will crop most of the headlines. The U. S. team will also crop in for a large share of attention. The Illinois are defending champions, but go into this year's contest rated as slight underdogs to the powerful Trojans of California. Utah will be represented by 22 athletes against 12 for the Illinois. The Men's U. of U. men entered, and UCLA, with its strong bid for the title. Team scoring will be on a 10-8-6-4-3-2-1 basis, with six places will be judged in each event.

BRADY WALKER stellar "Y" athlete, who will be bidding for points in the NCAA track and field championships, which commence tomorrow at the University of Utah stadium.

Racquet Team Entered in National Tourney

A major bid for national recognition on the tennis court will be made next week by Young U.'s crack tennis team when Coach Fred (Buck) Dixon takes a four man aggregation to the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament at Los Angeles. Play will begin Monday, June 23, and will continue during the entire week.

Linn Rockwood, Cougar captain and Utah state singles champion, will carry the chief hopes of the "Y" system for a national ranking. Rockwood has swept through all collegiate competition this season without the loss of a set, and, according to Coach Dixon, is hitting his shots better than ever. A tough competitor he is at his best in tournament play. Linn has suffered just two defeats in a year, both in the hands of Captain Robin Hippertiel, Public Relations Officer at Fort Douglas. Hippertiel beat Rockwood in the finals of the Utah Valley tourney two weeks ago, and again last week in the championship match of the Salt Lake City tournament. In both contests, Rockwood has forced the play to the full five sets.

Chauncey Peterson, Aid Alder, and either Grant Hickman or Lee Knell, will make up the balance of the squad. Peterson will team with Rockwood and will probably be entered in the tourney as the "Y" number two representative in the singles competition. Chauncey got off to a rather slow start this season, but in several weeks his game has rapidly returned to the form which won him the state collegiate singles title last season. Teamed with Rockwood, the pair present a formidable challenge in any competition.

Alder will team with either Hickman or Knell, depending on which player makes the trip. He has played and won more times this season, in collegiate matches and tournament play, and regardless which player teams with the duo will rate only slightly behind the Rockwood-Linn combination.

Cougar Graduate Signs to Coach

Danar Millet, physical education major of BYU, has accepted the position of athletic coach and instructor of physical education at Orderville high school, it was announced recently by Professor C. J. Hart.

Millet is a graduate of Hurricane high school and the Branch Agriculture College at Cedar City. During his enrollment at those schools he was prominent in all types of competitive athletics. He lettered in basketball at the "Y" in 1942.

During his army career, which lasted three and a half years, Millet served with the army engineers at Oklaawa and Korea. While stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., he served as port athlete director. Later he worked as an athletic director in the city recreation department of Tacoma, Wash.

He will graduate from the "Y" at the end of the summer season.

Rockwood Beaten In S. L. Net Meet

Linn Rockwood, Cougar net captain, suffered his second defeat of the season, last weekend, as Captain Robin Hippertiel captured the Salt Lake City championship from him by scores of 2-6, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Rockwood, defending champion, started fast and had the army netter on the defensive after copying two of the first three sets. However, Hippertiel rallied strongly in the final stages of the match, and had his booming service and terrific overhead game working to perfection as he completely dominated the play in the last two sets.

Cougar representatives took to the court in the doubles finals also, when Hippertiel and Richard Warner teamed together to cop two out of three sets from Rockwood and Chauncey Peterson, 7-6, 6-3, 6-3, in a hard-fought contest.
